POSITION: SUPPORT

NARAL Pro-Choice Maryland urges the House Economic Matters Committee a favorable report HB0166, Labor and Employment - Payment of Wages - Minimum Wage and Enforcement (Fight for Fifteen), sponsored by Delegate Diana Fennell.

Our organization is an advocate for reproductive health, rights, and justice which includes the rights of women to a fair wage at work. This means that Marylanders who work full time should have the right to a living wage that supports a life above the poverty line. This is a necessary step to reduce poverty in the State of Maryland – which was at 9.3% in 2018 according to ThinkPoverty¹, the second highest level of any state in the country – by giving more employees the ability to rise in income. This bill effectively raises the minimum wage to a living wage of $15 but over a period of some years. This means that businesses have time to adjust to the wage increases, and small businesses in particular will be able to handle the change in finance. We feel that the bill is fair to both employers and employees. Another key problem that this bill aims to fix is the reliance upon tips for some employees to achieve even a minimum wage, this bill would increase their wages to $15 giving them the wage security that they need. In every state, working mothers of very young children are disproportionately represented in low wage occupations so these provisions would significantly help working women and their families.

The absence of a living wage has severe consequences for working women in Maryland. It forces them into poverty despite working full time and can leave them food insecure as well as generally financially insecure. Families are left with inadequate supplies and less access to necessities such as healthcare. The MIT living wage calculator puts the Maryland living wage at $15.08² an hour. This wage would give working women stability and a feeling of security. This will also help employers as their employees will have better morale due to lowered stress and increased productivity.

HB0166 also has provisions to protect working women in other ways. Employers will be unable to threaten employees with reporting suspected immigration status if they make a complaint against the employer. This means that women will be more able to ensure that their rights and dignity are being respected without fear of retribution and will be better able to secure their income for their family. Employers will benefit from this as morale in the workplace will be boosted.

The consequences of not implementing this bill are numerous. Women in full-time minimum wage jobs and their families will continue to be forced to live in poverty and deal with the effects of that. Those who rely on tips to earn a full wage will continue to live in an insecure situation with a varying income. It will continue to be difficult for some women to stand up for their rights without fear of retribution.

We strongly support full-time working women having greater wage security, dignity and living above the poverty line. For these reasons, NARAL Pro-Choice Maryland urges a favorable report on HB0166. Thank you for your time and consideration.
